

Bio

Eberhard Bitter's theme is the whole spectrum of interpersonal relationships. His art is a sometimes unsparring analysis of people's confrontation with others and above all with themselves, their own feelings, experiences, and dreams. Figurative body shapes, in tension-filled interplay with each other. The protagonists, moving, "dancing" bodies, completely detached from space and time, are reduced to themselves and absorbed in the contemplation of the moment. It is not the outside that is of importance. A pulsating energy emanates from the processes that can be guessed at, the moment of which finds expression in his paintings. His art is not a classical representation, but pure communication with the viewer, who is addressed by the pictures and invited to reflect.

The Artist was born in 1960 in the Ruhr area, North Rhine-Westphalia, and initially trained as a bookbinder. From 1981 to 1987, Bitter studied painting at the Dortmund University of Applied Sciences and Arts with Prof. Pitt Moog and Prof. Hartmut Böhm. It is perhaps exemplary that Bitter initially began his studies in the field of graphic design, but then quite consciously decided on the liberal arts during his studies. This uncompromising determination characterizes his works today.

Since 2008, Bitter has had two teaching assignments for 'Freehand Drawing' and 'Fundamentals of Design' at the Bochum University of Applied Sciences, FB-Architecture - a task that fulfills him greatly. Bitter has been a member of the West German Artists' Association since 2010.

Inspiration

It's simply that the interpersonal theme, the human theme with all its connected joys and conflicts, the approximations and distances, that moves me personally the most.
